

BRISTOL SCHOOL BOARD DECLINES TO REINSTATE CHILDREN SUSPENDED FOR FAILURE TO TAKE OATH AND SALUTE FLAG

Hears Arguments of Petitioners and Also Spokesman for Robert W. Bracken Post, American Legion — Decision Announced Following Executive Session of School Board

The Bristol School Board last night denied the request of Niles J. Anderson and Ida Anderson and the request of their children, May and Paul Anderson, that May and Paul be reinstated in the Bristol schools after being suspended for refusal to take the prescribed oath of allegiance to the United States and for their failure to salute the flag.

The Anderson family are members of Jehovah's Witnesses and contend that to take such an oath and to salute the flag would be contrary to their religious beliefs and teachings. The Anderson children are residents of Tullytown and are non-resident pupils of the Bristol school district.

The school board was petitioned by the Andersons to grant them a hearing and to reinstate their children. The children were suspended from the schools on March 5th. The school board receiving the petition at a meeting held April 7th, granted the request for a hearing which was held last evening in the Wood street school building.

Those attending the hearing were assembled at the call of S. Bradley Ardrey, president of the school board, who stated that speakers would be limited to 30 minutes each. There were 18 present in addition to the members of the board. Seven of the 18 were members of Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion, and the balance exclusive of an attorney appearing for the Legion, were apparently members of Jehovah's Witnesses, or those in sympathy with their cause.

The proceedings records were taken by a stenotypist accompanying the petitioners.

The Bracken Post had as its spokesman, Maurice Mordell, who was introduced by Jacob C. Schmidt, Jr., former commander of 9th Legion District, as

Court Thinks Matthews Should Pay Surgeon $2250

PHILADELPHIA, Apr. 15—A jury in Common Pleas Court No. 4 yesterday decided that an appendectomy on a millionaire's wife is not worth $12,500, but is worth more than $500.

The case was that involving a suit against Charles J. Matthews, Langhorne Manor, he being named in the case by Dr. John O. Bower, Walnut street, a specialist in surgery and peritonitis.

Matthews, was in the leather business, and is now retired. The operation under discussion was performed upon Matthews' first wife, Clara Matthews, in April, 1940. Mrs. Matthews was a patient for 46 days in St. Luke's Hospital, here, she dying the following November from other causes, according to the surgeon.

The jury decided that a fee of $2250 would be about right, and so informed President Judge Thomas D. Finletter. Matthews had claimed that $500 would be a sufficient fee, stating that the operation did not improve his late wife's health, adding that she died of the same illness.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT
(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

A Showdown Coming

Washington, April 14. NOTHING makes it clearer that the lobby representatives of the AFL and CIO are on the defensive than the full-page advertisements which, at the cost of a good many thousands of dollars, they are putting in the newspapers. Better than anything else these demonstrate their belief that, notwithstanding Mr. Roosevelt's support, the show-down in Congress on the regulatory legislation to which they object so violently is certain to come soon!

THE points upon which the test will be had are—first, extension of the forty-hour week to forty-eight hours; second, a cessation during the war not only of strikes but of drives for the closed shop, the union shop and all shades thereof; third, a limitation on union initiation fees, dues and assessments so that men who want to work may do so without paying exorbitant union charges; fourth, establishment of a flexible ceiling over wages as a means to avert inflation.

COUPLE these four things with drastic action to limit profits from war contracts and there seems little excuse for not doing them all. Certainly, the overwhelming feeling of the people is that they should be done. Recent Gallup polls, for example, showed seventy-two per cent in favor of extending the forty-hour week and seventy-seven per cent against the closed shop. That an even greater percentage would register in favor of taking the profit out of war and of outlawing the inordinate union initiation charges is too clear to dispute. When the unmistakable public opinion behind these proposals is added to their basic soundness and the long desire of Congress to act, the fact that there has been no action is one of those things which his-

TOMORROW IS THE DAY WHEN YOU WILL BE ASKED TO PLEDGE

Every Resident of Bucks County To Be Visited By Air Wardens

WAR SAVINGS BONDS

Pledge Is Not An Order For the Purchase of Bonds

Tomorrow, April 16th, is the date when each resident in Bucks County will be visited by the Air Wardens of the district and asked to sign a pledge that they will purchase during the war as many war saving bonds and stamps as they possibly can.

This canvass comes at the end of an intensive campaign during the last four weeks in which every effort has been made to acquaint all citizens with the importance of the advantages of the purchase of these bonds and stamps. The work has been carried out by the county-wide committee authorized by the Treasury Department of the Government and headed by Harold L. Van Kirk of Doylestown.

Speaking of the pledge, Mr. Van Kirk said today: "The pledge is not an order for the purchase of bonds, but a promise to buy a certain amount at regular intervals through an authorized agency. Every signer is assured that the pledge is a confidential matter known only to air wardens securing it and the recording officials. No one is going to be forced to sign the pledge as it is entirely voluntary on the part of the citizens. It is to be signed also by those already buying defense bonds as one of the purposes of the drive is to determine how many people are already participating in the purchase

LUTHERAN PASTORS OPEN THREE-DAY SESSION AT CROYDON

Philadelphia Circuit Begins Session in St. Luke's Lutheran Church

SESSIONS HELD DAILY

Rev. H. E. Plehn, Rochester, Praises Parish School Established at Croydon

CROYDON, Apr. 15—The Philadelphia Circuit Pastoral Conference, meeting in St. Luke's Lutheran Church, the Rev. T. Kohlmeier, pastor, opened yesterday with a noon-day luncheon in the church basement served by members of St. Luke's Ladies' Aid. The first session was called to order by the chairman, the Rev. E. Kraus, of York, who lead in prayer. The minutes of the last conference were read by the secretary, the Rev. T. Fisher, of Cheltenham. The program for the three days of this conference as suggested by the chairman was adopted. Sessions are to be held daily from 9:30 to 12 and from 1:30 to 5.

The homiletical-exegetical paper was read by the essayist, the Rev. T. Nikolov, of Hopbottle, Pa. His subject was on the doctrine of the Resurrection of the dead, and the text treated was John 11:17-27. His paper pointed out the great comfort a Christian can derive from the fact that Christ rises again from the dead.

The floor was then given to the Rev. H. E. Plehn, of Rochester, N. Y., who represented the Eastern District Board for Christian Education of the Missouri Synod Lutheran Church. He stated that the Board was very much interested in the parish school which has been started by St. Luke's Lutheran Church at Croydon, and he stated for the Board that the congregation should be encouraged to make plans for the building of a new school building. He also suggested to all the pastors present at the conference that it would be a great help to St. Luke's congregation in Croydon if each congregation in the District would take up a special collection for the Croydon School Fund. The other matter presented by Pastor Plehn was young people's work. He encouraged all congregations, represented here by their pastors, to put forth greater efforts in the interest of the young people, particularly in connection with the official young people's organization of the Missouri Synod Lutheran Church, namely the Walther League. The rest of the afternoon session was devoted to individual problems relating to the pastoral work of a number of the pastors.

The meals were served in the church basement by the following women of the Ladies' Aid: Mrs. E. Findlay, Mrs. A. Foerster, Mrs. M. Hughes, Mrs. R. Johnson, Mrs. F. Kindt, Mrs. H. Koehler, Mrs. C. Kroft, Mrs. I. Piuma, Mrs. J. Remetta and Mrs. J. Sabol. Special visitors expected at the sessions today are Dr. A. Brunn, of New

One Man's Opinion

By WALTER KIERNAN
(I. N. S. Staff Writer)

We are carrying war on both shoulders for the French.

When we say "Viva La France" it goes double.

Our policy is that 50 million Frenchmen can't be wrong divided by two.

We extend the hand of friendship to De Gaulle and give Petain the elbow.

Then we spin around three times and reverse the gesture.

The French are the only people we are for in two convenient packages.

Hitler claims to be the friend of one-half the French. We have him doubled on that one.

We take them all to our bosom on alternate days.

This is known as diplomacy. Older citizens will recall the word.

Thought for the day: Viva la both of you.

FANCIFUL ASSOCIATIONS

An investigation into the likes and dislikes which people have for certain names, conducted by Nathan Schoenfeld, assistant in Columbia University's department of psychology, reveals that when the average person hears a common name he associates it with a definite personality trait, which generally is quite fanciful.

"Where these general or stereotype ideas originate is a matter for discussion," Mr. Schoenfeld said.
"Perhaps they are a fashion and change with the times. At any rate, they are not to be accepted as truth."

Men and women agree pretty well in their ideas, Mr. Schoenfeld found in questioning 300 individuals about their attitudes toward a list of thirty-two masculine and feminine names.

"Most people questioned," said Mr. Schoenfeld, "thought Herman stupid, Rex athletic while Richards and Cuthberts were considered good-looking but sissies."

Agatha seemed middle-aged to most people, but Joan was young and good-looking. Adrian was thought to be the artistic sort, and Edward friendly. Austin was cultured, Minnie was "slightly dumb," Vincent was a brunet.

The investigation also showed that men think that Mary is the quiet type, Bertha is plump, but Barbara is expected to be charming.

Most women associate Oscar with stupidity and consider Horace studious and Thomas conservative. The female reaction to women's names was as follows: Linda, sophisticated; Mary, religious; Rita, brunette; Maizie, talkative.

Apparently Mr. Schoenfeld did not ask people for their reactions to such names as Adolf, Benito, Yamashita or Hirohito. If he had, the answers would have been unprint-able anyway.

POINT WELL MADE

It's a glowing tribute to the peoples of English-speaking nations that regardless of the extent to which they have been forced to imitate the Axis in the marshalling of resources, industry and even manpower, they have clung steadfastly to their cherished right to freedom of expression, including criticism of their government.

Col. George Drew, Ontario Conservative leader, brought out the fact effectively in his recent address before the Cleveland Bar Association. He did not believe, he said, that any war was ever lost by criticism. He availed himself of the right he defended when he said that not one of the English-speaking nations yet has a right to complete satisfaction with what it has done in the war. "So far," he said, "the most we can say is that we have collectively avoided defeat."

Those who agree with Colonel Drew's estimate have only to ponder a moment to realize that a super-attitude on the part of the people under such circumstances would be a most unhelpful one. Democratic government by its very essence must reflect the will of the people. In this war the people want victory above all else, and they are determined to achieve it.

Constructive suggestions and criticism of inefficiency and ineptness should be welcomed by democratic governments.

By the time everything has had a ceiling put over it and a floor put under it, there will be nothing left to worry about but the vicissitudes of life.

Crime at Castaway by EDITH BRISTOL

SYNOPSIS

When Gerry Lane reached "Cast-away" to become secretary to Walter Gregg, wealthy contractor, she had a feeling of foreboding.
It was obvious her employer feared someone or something. Was it Worth Duffee who had sent Gregg's car hurtling over a cliff, seriously injuring him? The latter won a damage suit, now on appeal, and Duffee is trying to settle out of court. Or did it have something to do with the antagonism which existed in his home? Estelle, Gregg's wife, disliked Martha, his sister, who managed the household.
Estelle also objected to Pauline Dawson, Gregg's eccentric first wife, who was staying at the contractor's cottage in nearby Hidden Cove. Sydney Loftus, Estelle's son, was contemptuous of Harry Craven, the suave manager of the Gregg Construction Company, and Lance Gregg, Walter's nephew, who gave up college to assist his uncle following the accident. Gregg warns Gerry to keep his files locked. When Gerry was working on the Gallina Dam records, Flora-belle Hunt, Pauline's maid, slips into the study purportedly with a message for Gregg. While Gerry goes to summon Martha, the woman disappears with a picture of Gregg which hung over the file.
Martha belittles the incident, asks Gerry not to mention it to anyone, and replaces the photo with a duplicate. That night, Craven asks Gerry for copies of everything she types for Gregg, under the pretense of trying to make things easier for the convalescing contractor. When she refuses, he threatens her against talking. Next day, Gerry overhears Lance warn his uncle, "If you don't act soon there'll be death to pay."
That night Gregg is murdered.
Martha will benefit most by her brother's death; Castaway will go to her. Estelle's legacy is tied up in a trust fund. Kobe, a servant, tells Sheriff Nathan Allen that a stranger, whom Gregg was expecting, called at 8:30 P.M. Kobe significantly remarks that Domino, the dog, did not bark at the man as he usually does at strangers.

CHAPTER TEN

Domino had not barked!
That was important—although apparently not one of us had grasped the implications of the coach dog's silence in the night until Kobe pointed them out.

Domino always barked loudly at strangers; how well I remembered his noisy, tumultuous greeting to me when I first stepped on the ranch house porch, almost on the spot where the big Dalmatian lay now, in the sun near the front door, from time to time lifting an inquisitive ear at noises inside.

So, since Domino hadn't barked at the visitor whom Kobe could only describe as "Very tall, very thin, with turtle-skin spectacles and blue eyes," it was highly probable that the stranger was known to the dog.
And if that visitor was not the last person who saw Walter Gregg alive, then, whoever was the last person to see him must also have been familiar to the animal.

In the tense pause that followed Kobe's words, while the meaning of the watchdog's silence struck home to us all, I suddenly realized something else that was important —something that was to motivate my actions and dominate my thoughts in the next few weeks that lay ahead. It was this:

Deduction of vital facts from small matters is not limited to the officers of the law! Here was a factor that might prove of highest importance in solving the mystery of Walter Gregg's death—yet it had been overlooked by the sheriff and noted first by this small, startled, brown servant.

All right, then—I made up my mind. If Kobe could draw deductions, so could Gerry Lane! Being a duly-appointed deputy sheriff (even if I didn't have a badge) was going to mean more than sharp pencils and ready notebooks. I'd try my hand at observation, deduction, solution of this crime. Who was going to stop me?

A third thing of great importance happened to me that morning—but I'll tell about that when I come to it and that will be after I finished taking the questioning and answers of Lance Gregg and Harry Craven.

Both made clear, reasonable and acceptable statements of their actions on the night before. With my newly sharpened senses I realized that neither had an unsatisfactory alibi; yet both told plausible stories that could be checked, if necessary, by a number of witnesses.

For Lance: an evening spent in bowling at the employee's gymnasium at the construction camp of Gallina Dam, a night at the dormitory, where the early telephone call of Dr. Henry found him.

For Craven: an evening as briefly accounted for—a motion picture in San Francisco with another young man from the company's offices; return to his room in a Post street club before midnight; there the message telling of his employer's death brought him early in the morning, to the telephone.

Sheriff Allen finished the questions, both men completed their answers and my pencil paused a moment over the notebook when the third important thing happened—and I can tell you the very minute it took place, for my eyes lifted to the clock on the mantle and I said to myself, "This is a moment to remember."

It was half past ten—although it seemed to me that we had been sitting in Miss Gregg's study for endless hours when I looked at the clock. That was the moment when for the first time Lance Gregg saw me. I mean really noticed me. Before this he'd been introduced, had bowed, absent-mindedly, had gone through the empty motions of casual acquaintance. Now he saw me —and I knew it.

"Look here, Nate," he said to Allen. "You've got this girl so tired she's ready to drop. This is routine stuff to you, even if you are a friend of ours. But this child's new at such things. Give her a break. It wouldn't be a bad idea for you all to have a rest and a cup of coffee.
Aunt Martha could do with a little quiet before she has to see other people who'll be coming over to the ranch when they hear the news.
Call a recess for a few minutes, like a good chap."

Allen promptly acted on the suggestion. I think he was glad of a few minutes' breathing spell himself, for under his calm demeanor I could feel that he was shocked by the death of his friend of so many years. Shocked—and baffled.

I took my rest on the sunny slope back of the bungalow. There I felt far away from the deed of violence in the ranch house. I sat under one of the eucalyptus trees and closed my eyes and listened to the beating of the surf. Domino left his post by the door long enough to come and sniff me over, assuring himself that I had no share in this confusion.

I tried to think things out clearly.
The anger and hot words of the previous afternoon, heard from Mr.
Gregg's bedroom. What part did they play in the puzzle now spread before us? And Lance—so gentle with Miss Gregg, so considerate as to notice my own weariness—what was the meaning of his ugly warning as I had heard it yesterday, ringing through the silent passage —"It will mean death—if you don't"? I was frankly baffled, confused—and very unhappy.

It was restless sitting there in the golden October morning. I saw an official car from the sheriff's office speed up the driveway and several men got out—that would be the fingerprint men and photographers. I knew they were expected. Sheriff Allen met them at the car.

Dr. Henry, his official duties finished for the nonce, got into his own small car and sped away.
From the back road—the little-used one that came into Castaway from the edge of the cliffs above Hidden Cove—I watched a yellow sports roadster slip quietly and quickly into the grounds of the ranch house and drive into the garage. Sydney got out and helped his mother step from the machine.
Her face was almost hidden by the brim of her hat and her dark glasses.

Already—I thought—she's evading the publicity that is bound to follow news of this tragedy and a lump came into my throat to think how many people were grief-stricken by this dreadful thing. I couldn't say I liked Estelle Gregg as I liked her husband or Martha—she was too selfish for that—but I did feel sorry for her.

Sydney and his mother went in through the kitchen door and things were quiet again for as much as fifteen minutes while the peace of the hillside helped me pull myself together and make ready to go back to work.

I saw Lance come out of the house with Kobe looking so diminutive beside him and the two of them drove off down the driveway. . . .
Again silence spread over the slope of the garden and only the beat of the surf came to my ears.

I had promised myself a half-hour's rest and I took nearly all of that before starting down the hill, ready to transcribe the notes I had taken. . . . I entered the front door and walked down the hall to the door to the study. The door was locked. Beyond, in the bedroom, I knew the men from the office were conducting their search.

I knew I must start on the work, for Allen would want his record completed, the statements signed, as soon as possible, so I retraced my steps through the hall, crossed the width of the big house and entered the west wing, heading for Miss Gregg's sitting room again. The key to the study would be in her hands, surely.

A shrill, loud voice was speaking and the door was ajar. This seemed to be a house where I was doomed to hear other people's conversations without wanting to.

Estelle Gregg was talking and, from her tones, on the ragged edge of hysterics.

"You've always hated me . . . you hated to have your brother bring me here . . . you've hated me because I was younger and better looking than you . . . and now you have your friend the sheriff ask me where I was last night . . ."

Her voice broke and I heard low tones from Martha.

Estelle's high-pitched, angry voice went on. "Why should I be questioned? Like a criminal! This is my house now . . . I won't be treated like this in my own house
. . . Why doesn't he ask that wild woman in Hidden Cove where she was last night? . . . Why doesn't he ask you where you were?"

I retreated to the living room.
There seemed to be nothing to do except wait until the storm had blown over—or until the sheriff passed through and could admit me to the study. I must have waited there for ten minutes—the closed door to the hallway cut off the torrent of angry words and the silence of the big room was restful.

Then Lance threw open the front door and strode across the hall, Kobe following after him with short steps. Lance's face was grim and set. The Japanese boy's was again yellow with fright—as it had been that morning.

Lance saw me sitting in the window. "Get your notebook, will you, Miss Lane?" he shot at me, passing through the room and into the east wing. In a minute he was back with Sheriff Allen. "Ask him, Nate, ask him yourself," Lance said.

Allen turned to Kobe. "Mr. Gregg says you passed a man on the highway near the entrance gate—he was standing by a disabled automobile?"

"Yes," Kobe nodded.

"Had you seen him before?"

Kobe nodded again.

"You're sure, Kobe? Must not make a mistake."

"Please, no mistake. He was the man that called here last night . . .
I'd not forget him."

"Who was the man?" This question Allen asked of Lance. "Anybody you know?"

"Certainly I know him," Lance said grimly. "It was our neighbor, Worth Duffee."

some of our fighting men."

—PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT
February 23, 1942.

Would you be the one who failed to help buy that plane, tank, or ship—by failing to buy your share of Bonds? Could you sleep nights knowing that American boys were being killed because you and others "put off" doing your part?

Remember, they are OUR boys now—from your State, your town, perhaps your very home. They're out there risking their lives—giving their lives—so that America, your free America, can live. And just as you are counting upon them to give everything they've got, so they are counting upon you to give everything you've got—by working harder than you ever have before and by investing in Bonds to the very limit of your powers!

Can they count on you? Make your answer ring clear and true—let our boys know that every man, woman, and child in America is behind them 100%! Go to your local post office, bank, savings and loan association, or other official sales agency today. Pledge yourself to buy all the Bonds you can—regularly, every pay day until this war is won! The more Bonds you buy, the more planes will fly.

Bristol School Board Declines To Reinstall Suspended Children

representing the Pennsylvania State Department of the American Legion and the Bracken Post. Mr. Mordell is an assistant city solicitor of Philadelphia.

At the request of Mr. Schmidt the petition was read by Paul Forster, secretary of the school board.

Mr. Mordell at once demurred to the petition being valid in the light of a decision of the Supreme Court in a similar case in the Minersville School District, Vol. 310, Page 586.

President Ardrey stated that due to pressure of business each of the speakers was limited to 30 minutes in which to present their case.

W. B. Akin, Newportville, appeared as spokesman for the Anderson family. He was at once asked by Mr. Mordell what he intended to prove.

Mr. Akin read a prepared statement of several pages outlining the beliefs of members of the sect, and offering a solution for the problem.

The solution offered was:
—That the children will accept assignment to any useful duty while the ceremony of taking the oath of allegiance and saluting the flag is in progress.

—That the children will stand silent while the ceremony is in progress.

—That the children will withdraw from the room at the time that the oath is being taken and the salute being given.

Mr. Akin stated that this controversy had arisen due to pressure groups, one of which he mentioned in this district as the P. O. S. of A. It was the P. O. S. of A. which brought the issue to a head recently when a similar case arose in the Bristol Township schools.

"Some Boards in Bucks County have made arrangements to settle similar controversies," it was contended by Mr. Akin.

In his presentation of the Jehovah's Witnesses side of the case, the petition stated in part:

"These parents and children, are law-abiding citizens of the State. They fully and duly respect the flag of the United States and all the principles for which it as a symbol stands, and they willingly pledge themselves to obey all laws of the state or nation consistent therewith. The parents herein named are consecrated Christians, having made a covenant to be obedient to Almighty God and to follow in the footsteps of Jesus Christ. . . . With them the Almighty God is first and His law is supreme and for them to violate their covenant with God and to violate His commandments means their everlasting destruction. Their children are likewise consecrated and in a covenant to do the will of God and to obey their parents as commanded by the Scriptures. . . . They ask that due respect be given to their conscientious belief, and which right is guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States.

"To them the Scriptures teach that the laws and commandments of Almighty God are supreme and for them to yield to a rule of the state contrary to God's law means idolatry, the practice of which by them would lead to their everlasting destruction.

"These children have obeyed all the laws of the school except the one above mentioned, and they have asked to be excused from indulging in the ceremony prescribed because it violates their conscience and causes them to violate God's commandments.

"Since the highest court of the land has shifted the burden of deciding this matter from the courts to the boards of education, we come to you and respectfully ask that you indulge us while we give fully the reason for the position we take."

Frequent reference was made to chapter 20 of Exodus in the Bible which had previously been quoted by Mr. Akin: "Thou shalt have no other gods before Me. Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth."

There were frequent quotations from made to William Penn and his following court decisions and from the Bible.

given in the prepared statement read by Mr. Akin.

At the conclusion of Mr. Akin's statement a woman asked permission to speak on behalf of the Anderson family. When asked to give her name and address she introduced herself as Mrs. Hilda Palmer Jones, 1628 West Oxford street, Philadelphia. "I am not a Jehovah Witness," she said at the outset. She stated that she was a Protestant and sent her child to a Roman Catholic school. Mrs. Jones also read a prepared statement which gave much concerning the Constitution of the United States and its historical background. Frequent reference was made to William Penn and his following court decisions and from the Bible.

After discussing the subject for 30 minutes Mr. Ardrey informed Mrs. Jones that she had exceeded the time limit. She made frequent attempts to read an article from a Philadelphia newspaper and to this there was considerable objection on the part of Mr. Mordell. Mr. Mordell discredited statements made in the press, and said that he was rarely able to recognize quotations appearing in the public press.

"We have had a lot of oratory and the giving of historical data in the speeches and testimony offered here this evening," said Mr. Mordell.

In his opinion the question involved was the power and discretion of the board to make the ruling. He read at great length from the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the Minersville School District case upholding the action of the Board in ruling that the pledge should be given and the flag saluted.

Speaking following the conclusion of his reading of this decision Mr. Mordell said that the flag is a symbol of national unity and all that it typifies. He said that a salute to the flag is "an acknowledgement that it is your country." He then stressed that without national unity there would be no liberty.

Mr. Mordell said that it had been proven that the board "has the discretion and the right to do what it has done."

Mr. Ardrey then invited any others who might be present and having a desire to speak upon the subject to do so. The Rev. Arthur Gibson, rector of Christ Church, Eddington, and chaplain of Bracken Post, was invited to voice any opinion he might have. He spoke briefly and stated that "it is difficult to argue unless we start at the same premises for the argument."

All those desiring to voice their opinions having done so, the school board voted to go into executive session. Mr. Ardrey thanked those attending the meeting for doing so.

All but the board members left the room and after about a half hour the board meeting adjourned and the decision was announced by Mr. Ardrey, acting as spokesman.

torians of the future, writing of the conduct of the war, will find it hardest to explain or defend.

TODAY no one can be found to contend that we would not be much stronger and better equipped if instead of the various unworkable and illogical setups that preceded the appointment of a single-headed War Production Board, with real power to act, that step had been taken eighteen months before, when it was first urged. Similarly, few detached persons will deny that if the proposals enumerated above, including profit limitations, had become American policy when our defense effort began early in 1941, the nation now would be militarily more formidable, the cost of preparation vastly less, the internal danger of inflation far more remote and victory much closer.

ALL these things, like the single-headed production board, were clearly indicated by the experience of the last war, from the lessons of which it was reasonable to believe we would profit. The question is why haven't we? A truthful answer to that must place responsibility on the White House. There is no other place to put it. Everybody knows that is true and how little can be done about it. It took nearly eighteen months of pounding to get the single-headed production board. How long it will be before steps in these other matters will be taken is uncertain, but there are indications that some modifications of the White House attitude are taking place.

OF COURSE, there is no difficulty about the curtailment of profits. No one is opposed to that except the profiteers. The reason action has not been taken before is because there had been no public exposures and consequently no public indignation. Action, speedy and firm, will come on this. Again experience should have dictated such action in the beginning, but there is no use talking about that now. As to labor legislation, the sole reason none has been enacted and the country is still without a labor policy is because the labor lobbyists and the President, working together, have prevented it.

BUT the demand persists and increases. Members of Congress have been prodded by their constituents. They are "hearing from home" on the subject. And they are facing an election. All of which is working toward the before-mentioned showdown, the imminence of which has spurred the labor lobbyists into their advertising campaign, induced them to offer certain "concessions," and caused White House advisers to urge upon Mr. Roosevelt some step to stall off a Congressional vote—if he still wants to keep labor policy wholly on his hands, which quite obviously he does. Recent White House conferences on the subject have been held and announcements are forecast. The best judgment is that some time soon the President will shift his stand and declare in favor of "freezing wages," because pressure on him for this move is very strong within his own Administration and the inflationary threat has become really alarming. But, when he does this, it is said, he will link it with recommendations for a one hundred per cent. excess profit tax, a still further lowering of tax exemptions and a general limitation on individual incomes that will make millionaires things of the past, to none of which is there sound objection.

THESE things Mr. Roosevelt will do, his friends say, but he will not yield on the forty-hour week nor will he agree to any action prohibiting labor leaders from pushing toward their closed-shop goal, war or no war. If action on these two points is to be had Congress will have to take it in the face of undiminished Presidential opposition. Neither public opinion nor Congressional threat will move him on these. His view on them is that the newspapers have misrepresented the facts and that the people misunderstand. To more fully convey this view, it is said, he may make another fireside chat the last of this month. That, his aides assert, will "cool these Congressmen off." Perhaps they are right, but a lot of them are pretty hot at the moment.

"Mother" Moore Speaks At W. C. T. U. Institute

Comed by Mrs. L. Hartley, Mrs. H. Hartman, Fallington, gave the response. Presiding officer was Mrs. Leroy Nixon, president of Bucks County W. C. T. U. Miss Mary Jane Corbett gave the main address at the morning session. Speaking on the subject, "Our South American Neighbors," Miss Corbett confined her remarks mostly to affairs in Brazil. She spoke of the W. C. T. U. organizations in that country, and said its national president is a member of the Brazilian nobility. The people of Brazil, it was said, are inclined to be temperate, and the government has a department of temperance.

A feature of the morning session was a memorial service conducted by Miss Emily I. Packer for members who died during the past year. Mention was made of two young men who have been in the service and who are now reported missing. They are Harry Rex, Churchville, and Conrad Atkinson, of this place. Their mothers and grandmothers were active in temperance affairs in the county for many years.

Devotions were conducted by Rev. William F. MacCalmont, pastor of the Newtown Presbyterian Church, following which Miss Carol Schuster, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Ross L. Neagley, rendered a vocal solo. The Rev. Chester J. Buzzard, pastor of Newtown Methodist Church, was the other speaker of the afternoon. Taking as his subject, "Somber Shadows Hanging Over Our Heads," Rev. Buzzard said in 1939 and 1940 there were 27,000,000 young people in this nation who had no church affiliations. He spoke of war and its attendant evils.

Continuing, Rev. Buzzard said: "Since the last war we have been reaching out for more money and material things and we did not look to God." He expressed regret and concern because of the attitude of some church members regarding the temperance question, and of their patronage of the hotels, liquor stores and cocktail bars.

Bringing his remarks to a close, Rev. Buzzard said: "We need more workers like Carrie Nation and Frances E. Willard. We must work to eliminate the forces of darkness, and we must go forth in God's name, cost what it may."

Emergency Police To Study First-Aid Course

The place designated as a headquarters or central control system is selected by the Council and then equipped with maps, charts and communication systems such as would be necessary for the efficient direction of the various emergency units organized for service during an emergency or catastrophe.

Mrs. Russell DeLong, chairman of the Transportation Committee of the Bristol Branch of the American Red Cross, outlined her work and gave a resume of what had been accomplished by her committee.

A resolution was adopted by the Council requiring all emergency police to have at least ten hours of first-aid instruction.

The Board will meet next Tuesday evening with the chairman of the Disaster Committees of the Red Cross for the purpose of considering the work of the two groups.

ing the only business for which the meeting convened it adjourned upon receiving the credentials of Mr. Snyder. The Board then re-convened in regular session to consider the school budget which was tentatively adopted. The budget, as it now stands, calls a tax rate of 16 mills and a per capita tax of $4.00, the same rate as last year.

The Board authorized the dismissal of the schools early on the day on which registrations are received for sugar rationing, if such registrations are put into effect.

The schools will not be in session on April 27th when men between the ages of 44 and 45 are to be registered by the school faculty in the school buildings.

WANTED Fighting Dollars!

Make Every Pay Day ... BOND DAY!

TODAY, Americans are dying so that America, your free America, can live!

Today, the men in our Army and Navy urgently need more planes, more tanks, more guns! More than our enemies have, better than our enemies have, if we're going to smash our way to Victory!

We've got to get them. We will get them. But only if every man, woman, and child in America helps! And helps voluntarily, regularly, in the American Way—the War Savings Bond way—every pay day.

Every dollar you can lend your Government is needed and needed now! Start getting your share of War Savings Bonds and Stamps today. Get them regularly. Plan to set aside money every pay day—every single dime that you can. And remember, your Government guarantees that your money will come back to you with interest—as much as $4 for every $3 when Bonds are held to maturity.

YOU GET A $25 U. S. BOND FOR ONLY $18.75

Facts About War Savings Bonds

How much do they cost?

You LEND Uncle Sam

Upon Maturity You GET BACK

$18.75	$25.00
$37.50	$50.00
$75.00	$100.00
$375.00	$500.00
$750.00	$1,000.00

When is maturity? Ten years, but you can cash the Bonds at any time after 60 days from issue date. Naturally, the longer you hold the Bond, up to 10 years, the more money you'll get back. But you'll never get less than you put in.

What's the interest rate? When held to maturity, the Bonds yield 2.9% per year on your investment, compounded semiannually—you get back $4 for every $3.

When should I buy a Bond? Start now; buy regularly. If your company has a Pay-Roll Savings Plan, take advantage of it. NOW. INVEST IN SAFETY—WITH PERFECT SAFETY!

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

Eddie Albert, playing the part of a two-fisted fighting champ of the ring who goes back to his old home town to clear his father of a graft scandal, comes to the Grand Theatre today in the starring role of "Treat 'Em Rough."

Besides the popular homespun young comedian, the cast brings together Peggy Moran, one of Universal studio's most promising new faces, and William Frawley, Lloyd Corrigan, Truman Bradley, Mantan Moreland, and Joseph Crehan.

Announced as a new kind of comedy musical, "Jail House Blues" comes to the screen of the Grand Theatre today with a cast headed by Nat Pendleton, Anne Gwynne, Robert Paige, Horace MacMahon and other players.

BRISTOL THEATRE

At long last the dramatization of Richard Llewellyn's best-selling novel, "How Green Was My Valley," is brought to the screen under the able, productive genius of Darryl F. Zanuck. Here is the film that has been of preview audiences it promises to fulfill the expectations of the most discriminating motion picture fan.

The keynote of this production which is due to open today at the Bristol Theatre is the fidelity of its portrayal to the novel of the same name. Laid against the colorful background of a Welsh mining village, "How Green Was My Valley" brings to life the dynamic characters who captivated the over five million people who read the outstanding book.

BRISTOL A. A. NINE PLANS TO PLAY SUNDAY AND TWILIGHT SCHEDULE DURING COMING SEASON

An attempt will be made by Johnny Mulholland, veteran Bristol baseball manager, to play Sunday and twilight ball on Leedom's Field, this season. The local leader, who has piloted the Bristol A. A. through 40 years of all kinds of "in and out seasons," is preparing for the coming season.

All interested in playing this year are requested to be on hand for the initial drill. Mulholland wants the best ball players he can get, and for that reason the man who shows him the most in practice will play the position he represents.

There has been sitting rumors floating around that a Penn-Jersey League would go great guns in sectional ranks. Mulholland, himself, has suggested Bristol, Burlington, Florence, Langhorne, Morrisville and any other sixth party interested. But the proposed plan is more talk than actuality.

Regardless of what happens, Bristol A. A. will try to please local fans by playing home ball. However, an inter-town league would serve to stimulate community interest, such as the old Lower Bucks and Delaware River circuits once did.

SPORTSMEN HAVE SESSION OF UNUSUAL INTEREST

Approximately 35 members of the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association met at the Odd Fellows Hall last evening to take part in the April meeting of the association.

Among the highlights on the business program, which was voted one of the best sessions in the last three years, were problems involving the Bucks County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs, game stocking, Silver Lake and Spring trap shooting meets.

Climaxing the meeting was the showing of four reel soft good fishing pictures. The pictures, which were supplied by a national bait company, were shown by C. W. Winter, prominent local sportsman. Among the guests present at the meeting was Fish Warden Harry Coles.

The business session was under the direction of chairman Nunzio Rubino. In his opening remarks he urged that a membership drive be held. "Now that the association has a fine club house we have more reason than ever to seek new members," Rubino declared.

John R. Burd, chairman of the fish committee, acquainted members with the rules of the 1942 fishing contest for members of the association. Fifteen dollars in fishing tackle prizes will be awarded this year, according to his report. Two divisions have been established, with a prize to be given in each. One prize will be given for the largest game fish, and the second prize will be awarded for the largest non-game fish, excluding carp and eels.

A communication from Seth Gordon, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Game Commission, indicated that the lower end of the county was very plentifully stocked with pheasants this spring. A protest was voiced by members over the fact that Game Warden Stucke, who is responsible for the distribution in this section, had failed to contact the club regarding the stocking which took place several weeks ago.

The report of the local club's delegates to the recent county federation meeting in Doylestown was read. As a result of this report the association decided to reconsider its tentative plan to withdraw from membership in the federation.

Decision was reached to proceed with the installation of a fishway at the dam breast of Silver Lake. It is believed that the erection of this chute will enable fish coming up from the Delaware River to climb the dam and spawn in the lake. Warden Coles outlined the type of chute or trough that he believed would be most effective. As to the question of whether the water would be drained from Silver Lake for the proposed new highway that will cut across the lower end of this body of water, Warden Coles stated that not sufficient water would be released by opening the gates in the dam to harm the fish life.

Motion was passed to seek permission from the Fish Commission to close the water to all fishing between the bridge which carries Bath Road over the stream emptying from Silver Lake and the dam breast of the lake. This will enable the fishway to be more effective, it is believed.

A motion was passed that emblems, in the form of attractive pins be secured for members.

Announcement was also made that the interior of the newly-erected club house on the Asay farm, across from Silver Lake, will be painted in the near future. A plea was made for members to contribute furniture for the building.

A meeting will be held Sunday afternoon at the club house, at which representatives from the Rohm & Haas Gun Club, Edgely Rod & Gun Club, and Newportville Rod & Gun Club will be invited to attend for the purpose of discussing arrangements for a 4-way trap shoot of these clubs.

To offer the club house as an air raid spotter station if it can be found suitable for this purpose, and to offer it for use of any defense unit that may need it.

The motion pictures shown at the close of the meeting by C. W. Winter included: "Laurentian Lures," "Seeking Steelheads," "Salmon Angling On The Restigouche," and "Inquest of the Bronzeback."

ANOTHER TEAM ADDED TO SOFTBALL LEAGUE

Another team has been added to the Bristol Softball League. At a meeting of the circuit held in the Diamond Sporting Goods store last night the Wilson Distillery team filed its application and it was accepted. There is still vacancies for two more clubs which President DiLorenzo desires to have filled this week.

The teams have decided to open the season, May 11. Those teams present last night posted their franchise money and adopted the Diamond P8912 as the official ball of the league.

Teams and their representatives last night were: Wilson's, Bernie Ussett; Bancroft-Hickey, Ken Brown; Fifth Ward Sporting Club, Clem Peterpaul; Franklin, Michael LaSalle; Profy's, Ray Nichols; Diamond, Joseph A. Diamanti; Knights of Columbus, Joe Dolan.

MAY FORM YOUNGSTERS LEAGUE

A movement has been started to form a softball league for the youngsters of the borough. The players in this league will range from eight to fourteen years of age. Any manager interested in organizing a team and entering it into the Youth's Softball League is requested to be present at a meeting tonight at the Diamond Sporting Goods store, Mill street.

NAMED MEMBERS OF PHYSICAL FITNESS BOARD

Miss Mary Jane Corbett and Rev. C. J. Buzzard Also Among Speakers

IS HELD AT NEWTOWN

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 15 — Earl B. Melrath, owner of the Bucks County Shooting Association grounds near Chalfont; W. H. Pearson, of the Sky Line Gun Club, Bethlehem; and John Murphy, secretary of the Riegelsville Gun Club, Riegelsville, have been made members of trapshooting section of the Sports Board, Division of Physical Fitness, office of Civilian Defense.

The program is headed in general by prominent sportsmen throughout Pennsylvania, but here in southeastern Pennsylvania where trapshooting and white flyer matches are popular, leading citizens are quite active.

Gun clubs in the section, including the Bucks County Shooting Association grounds near Chalfont—one of the best equipped in the section—will be open to the public certain afternoons. The Bucks county grounds will be open Wednesday and Saturday afternoons for people desiring to shoot, either novices or old-timers. There will be free instruction periods. The cost will be nothing, but for ammunition.

Mr. Melrath, owner of the Bucks county grounds, pointed out that by inducing those who own shot guns, but rarely use them, to come out and practice, a home front army can be raised in an efficient manner. It is estimated that between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 men and women in the United States — hunters and trapshooters — are expert in fire arms. This army could combat invasions, sportsmen believe.

PET RECIPE AND TASTY MENUS

Submitted by a student in the Course dealing with Nutrition, taught by Mrs. Elbert F. Carter, of Emille, a member of the American Dietetic Association. The course, being followed by a number of home-makers of Bristol and vicinity, is conducted weekly in The Travel Club Home. Each student presented before the class one of her favorite recipes, together with a well-balanced diet for the day, one of the three menus including the favorite dish.

"I am looking forward to dictating peace to the United States in the White House in Washington."—Admiral Yamamoto America so very, very sorry, Japan BUT WE'LL CALL ON YOU IN TOKYO, INSTEAD!

So that's what you think, do you, Japan?

You make treacherous, bad mistake. You forget American people. We say, "No!" And we're saying "No!" with every dime and dollar we put into War Savings Bonds and Stamps money which will go to produce the finest, deadliest fighting equipment an Army and Navy ever had!

Remember Pearl Harbor, Japan? Knife in back make all America mad. FIGHTING MAD!

America! Don't delay. Put your dollars into uniform. Put them into U. S. War Savings Bonds and Stamps. That's the way every American can help win the war—this all-out Axis War upon us!

We must act fast. Start getting your share of United States War Savings Bonds and Stamps today. Get them regularly, day after day, week after week. If you have already bought a Bond, now is the time to get more!

Invest With Perfect Safety

How Much Do They Cost?	Upon Maturity You Get Back
$18.75	$25.00
$37.50	$50.00
$75.00	$100.00
$375.00	$500.00
$750.00	$1,000.00

When is maturity? Ten years, but you can cash the Bonds at any time after 90 days from the date of purchase. Naturally, the longer you hold the Bond, up to 10 years, the more money you'll get back. But you'll never get less than you put in. Bonds guaranteed by U. S. Government. What's the interest rate? When held to maturity, the Bonds pay 2.9 percent per year on your investment, compounded semiannually—you get back $4 for every $3.

Where do I go to buy a Bond? To your local Bank, Post Office, Savings and Loan Association, or other War Savings Bond Agency.
